

MATTRESS

PRODUCT COMPARISON & BUYING GUIDE

Shopping for a mattress can be confusing but it doesn't have to be. Here's a quick guide to make buying a mattress easy.

Mattress Types:

- Innerspring: Derives its flexibility from a series of coiled wires surrounded by layers of padding.
- Memory Foam: Made of temperature sensitive, slow recovery urethane foam that conform to the body and distributes pressure according to body heat and weight.
- Air: These beds use a bladder of air to provide support.

Top Style: Mattresses come in three general top styles:

- Pillow Top: A layer of extra padding is sewn to the top of the mattress. Pillow tops can measure several inches thick and are generally more expensive due to the added materials.
- Euro Top: Pillow top with the padding stitched to the edge of the bed. Some people feel this treatment reduces the sleeping surface of the bed.
- Tight top: The standard top style where all padding is under a single layer of fabric. Mattresses with comfort ratings of firm or plush generally have tight tops.

Understanding Comfort vs. Support

Comfort System: Comfort refers to the how "cushy" a mattress feels. Retailers will assign "comfort levels" based on the:

1. Type of materials used
2. Amount of materials used
3. Type and amount of stitching on the top.

The comfort system includes the Quilting Package and the Upholstery Layer:

Quilting Package: The surface layers of a mattress are stitched to the top layers of foam to create the quilting package. The style and amount of stitching impacts how a mattress feels. The more stitching, the firmer the feel. Stitching that allows the cushioning to fluff up will feel more plush.

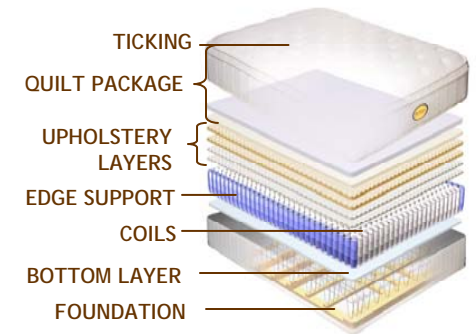

Ticking: Ticking is the outer fabric covering on a mattress.

Upholstery Layer: (a.k.a. Padding) Typically made up of a variety of foams. Latex and Visco foams give a more "cushy" feel. Convoluted or "egg crate" foam provides more cushioning than a flat piece of polyurethane foam.

- Visco or Memory Foam: This temperature sensitive, slow recovery foam conforms to the body and distributes pressure according to body heat and weight. It may be used as the primary construction material, or as a component of the upholstery layer of an innerspring mattress. Visco form is antibacterial and repels dust mites.
- Latex Foam: A natural foam product that is often considered "cushier" than other foams. Latex is also antimicrobial and repels dust mites.

Firmness: The support provided by an innerspring mattress has little to do with comfort level and everything to do with the coils. The three determining factors are gauge, count and type.

- Coil Gauge: The thickness measure of the wire used. Coils made of lower gauges are stiffer (13 g), giving extra firmness. Higher gauge wires are springier (15 g). A quality bed will be equally durable regardless of which gauge you choose.
- Coil Count: Consumer Reports suggests 312 coils are enough to provide proper support. Beautyrest mattresses always have 650 or more coils in queen size.
- Bonnell Coils: The hour-glass shape coils, attached at the top and bottom, are standard on most mattresses.
- Pocketed Coils: Coils enclosed in separate fabric pockets that are attached to adjacent pockets. When compressed there is limited impact on surrounding coils, resulting in less disruption for sleep partners.
- Alternating Cable Coil: 3 high carbon wires stranded together, making it more durable. These coils are alternated with rows of pocketed coils.
- Coil on Coil: Two sets of 3½" coils stacked on top of each other to provide the highest level of motion separation.

Edge Support: A special design where the coils on the outer edge of an innerspring unit are positioned to give support right up to the edge of the bed. Edge support may be achieved with additional rows of heavier gauge coils, or by encasing the coils in firm foams.

Bottom Layer: A layer of foam to separate the bottom coils from the outside fabric.

Foundation: (a.k.a. Boxspring) Support a mattress by distributing weight and acting as a shock absorber. If you have a platform style bed, a foundation may not be necessary.

Low Profile Foundations: Provide all the support and functionality of a standard foundation in just 5½". Allowing you to keep the bed low enough to fit your headboard and makes climbing in and out easy.

No-Turn / No-Flip Mattress: All soft foams are used on the top. This avoids the compression of foams on the bottom side where they break down faster than they do on the sleeping side.

Non-Prorated Warranty: If a manufacturing defect occurs under a non-prorated warranty, the manufacturer will cover the entire replacement cost for the full term of the warranty.
